Short presentation

Regitze Helene Røhlving is a PhD student at the Department of Political Science (Centre for European Politics) and iCourts at the Faculty of Law. Her research is in the field between political science and law with a focus on how civil society uses courts and law as a tool against democratic backsliding experienced in Central and Eastern Europe

Thus, Regitze's research focus is on various relevant aspects of social-legal and law & society research, democratic theory, civil society and European courts and legal integration. The project is both empirically and theoretically driven, in that it explores and discusses how to define and conceptualise civil society's so-called legal mobilisation based on how this takes place in Hungary and Poland.

Supervisor: Professor Marlene Wind (DPS)
Co-supervisor: Professor Mikael Rask Madsen (LAW)

Research stay as visiting PhD student:
University of Warsaw, Department of Political Systems in Poland.
Central European University's Democracy Institute in Hungary.

Fieldwork: Poland and Hungary in autumn 2021.

Affiliations

Regitze is a Vice-Chair and board member of the Danish NGO Nyt Europa, which is working on issues of democracy, climate, and civil society across Europe. She is furthermore founder of the Network for Young Women Scholars, which work to build connection and share experiences amongst female scholars across disciplines, universities and countries.

Previous research

Regitze has previously, as part of her master's degree, researched the relationship between civil society and the EU in the process of democratization of North Africa following the Arab Spring. Regitze has for this purpose conducted field studies in Morocco and Tunisia founded by the Danish Institute in Damascus.
